CSCT Newfoundland & Labrador Director's Report CSCT Annual General Meeting 2021 Virtual

This year has presented a number of challenges that no one would have thought about, from a record-breaking snowstorm to the pandemic. It hasn't been easy sometimes but our members have gone above and beyond in tackling each issue that arose. This is especially true now, in the midst of another outbreak in our province. Technologists have continued to provide cardiac care while putting in extra hours at swabbing clinics or re-deploying to other care areas to assist when possible. I hope this experience is something that we can all ultimately feel proud of, not just in Newfoundland and Labrador but all across the country.

Since we were unable to hold an in-person AGM last September, we organized a virtual meeting in its place. The treasurer and education coordinator positions were up for re-election and both were filled at this time by Christa Bugden and Crystal Daley, respectively.

We have decided to move our website over to Wild Apricot along with CSCT and a number of other provinces. This platform will provide a much needed database improvement as well as some new features for our membership. Website design is ongoing and we hope to have it up and running soon.

Our main project for the coming year is to update our provincial bylaws. The board is planning to make the motion to amend the current document at our next AGM in September 2021. If all goes well, we hope to have a more current and expanded set of bylaws ready to present to the membership at the 2022 AGM.

Respectfully submitted,
Megan Willette, RCT
